

SLE TRAINING

INTERNATIONAL COOPERATION FOR SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT

SLE TRAINING is an international training programme for professionals in development cooperation. We see international cooperation as a global responsibility and therefore train international experts from the “South and East – West and North”. By bringing participants from various cultural backgrounds and with different professions together, SLE TRAINING pursues an intercultural and interdisciplinary approach. We consider mutual understanding and learning from one another an important prerequisite for successful cooperation in the development field.

As part of the Humboldt University, SLE TRAINING combines first-class scientific standards with experience-driven practical approaches. Besides being a provider of capacity development, we consider ourselves as part of an international network consisting of the growing number of our international alumni.

Since 2005 we have welcomed more than 700 participants from 114 different countries.

TRAINING PHILOSOPHY

Since 2005, our renowned short-term training courses in Berlin provide high quality application-oriented and experience-based training, introduce practical methods and tools, support approaches and reflections within the processes of cooperation. We encourage you with individual support, integrate you into an international and interdisciplinary group of colleagues and alumni and interlink you with relevant organizations.

Participation and learning by doing are the key elements of our teaching philosophy. Case studies, presentations, discussions, exercises and role plays help to create an environment of common learning, where participants can put methods taught into practice.

We work on the interpersonal dimension of practical development cooperation: human interaction, group dynamics, exchange of ideas, creation of inspirational work atmospheres, active listening, learning from each other, collaboration beyond personal, professional and national/cultural backgrounds.

TARGET GROUP

SLE TRAINING targets international experts active in development cooperation, in public administrative bodies and institutions, in the academic field, in NGOs or in the private business sector. Participants should hold a university degree and have relevant professional/practical experience.

A good command of English is a prerequisite.

TRAINING COURSES IN BERLIN 2016

All courses are accompanied by a framework programme that allows participants to become familiar with current scholarly discussions in course-relevant areas of development cooperation, and to meet representatives of German governmental and non-governmental organisations active in this field.

The training courses are organised and hosted by SLE TRAINING, Centre for Rural Development (SLE), Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin. Financial support is offered by the German Academic Exchange Service (DAAD), provided by the German Federal Ministry for Economic Cooperation and Development (BMZ) and the Federal Foreign Office of Germany. Further funds are provided by the Berlin Senate.

CO-FUNDING OPPORTUNITIES

You are eligible for a co-funding award if:

- You are a non-German alumna/alumnus of a German university. That means you have studied, worked and/or carried out research for at least three months at a German university.
- Or you are a (non-German) holder of a sur-place scholarship from a German institution. That means you have received a scholarship provided by a German organisation for studying at a university or other institution of higher education in your home country or in a third country.

The co-funding award covers part of your travel costs and a daily allowance. On top of that, places for self-payment are reserved for persons who do not fulfill the criteria stated above. This means, you can participate, even if you are not eligible for co-funding. In that case, you or your organisation will cover all occurring costs.

Fee per course: € 620
